"Packed of resources, well written and organized, this is a wonderful resource for teens." Looking for a devotional for teens that gets to the heart of the matter? Want to put a book in the hands of your teenager that does not sugar-coat hard issues, real life, and the simplicity of the gospel? Teen People of the Bible: Celebrity Profiles of Real Faith and Tragic Failure by Daniel Darling is just what you are looking for. After reading and reviewing Crash Course: Forming a Faith Foundation for Life by Pastor and Author, Dan Darling, I was encouraged by the information he presented in that devotional. Teen People of the Bible: Celebrity Profiles of Real Faith and Tragic Failure is very much the same except this devotional urges teenagers to identify with all the stories in the bible of young people and the choices they faced. These choices are not so different that what teenagers face today. For instance: * Day 36 asks the question "Why do I have to obey all the rules?" and offers the story of Samson as an example. * Day 62 asks the question "Does God have a plan for me even if my parents don't follow Him?" and offers the story of Jonathan as an example. * Day 87 asks the question "Are small compromises such a big deal?" and offers the story of Daniel as an example. I especially like the way the devotions are arranged. First, a question is stated so that teens can identify and want to read more. The bible teen, the bible verse, the storyline (context reference), and the question the bible teen would ask (if alive today) wraps up the intro of the devotion. The devotion (digging deeper) follows and the sections `Did You Know`, `Today's Prayer`, and `Journal Questions` finish the devotion.
